

Rawene Road Update

Wednesday 24th October 2018

Land slip remediation activities on site

Over the last four weeks trucks have been delivering fill material to the slip site. That material has been spread and levelled where necessary and we can confirm that work on the initial filling is complete. You can see from the recent photo below that a platform has been created for the piling rigs to commence works soon.

While trucks were bringing fill to site a portion of the public Rawene car park had to be closed (to assist with truck access and manoeuvring). We are pleased to let you know that those parking spaces are now available again for use by the public.

Monitoring

The site is still being monitored for movement (inclinometers) and ground water (piezometers). These are in-ground monitoring equipment that are regularly checked on-site, by our consultants with the readings and any recommendations sent to the Project Manager.

We can confirm that there has been no movement since the sheet pile walling was installed in January 2018.

Update on next phase of land slip work

The next major item to be undertaken on site will be the construction of a concrete pile wall and will begin soon. The bored piles (not driven) and anchors will take until around early January to complete. There will be concrete truck deliveries during this time and we will try to keep the community informed about the timing of this, especially as it relates to any closures of the public car park.
